Allowable Subject Matter

1. Claims 1, 3, 6-9 and 11-41 are allowed.
2. The following is an Examiner's statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

Regarding claims 1, 3, 6-9, 15, and 19, the consideration of In re Donaldson for the combination of three keying means where the first selects a screen of information to display, the second selects a field on the displayed screen of information through use of tab feature, while the third selects a value to enter in the selected field on the displayed screen through use of scrolling through (numeric or alphanumeric, not claimed) data values with other claimed features of the instant claim appears novel and nonobvious over art of record.

Regarding claims 11-14 and 22, the combination of "screens including screen-dependent data input fields... to the golf play information... each screen" (emphasis added) with other claimed features in claim appears novel and non-obvious over art of record.

Regarding claims 10, 16, 20 and 27, the levels of recording or the selection of recording modes in combination with other claimed features appears novel and non-obvious over art of record.

Regarding features of claims 17-18 and 21, the steps claimed in combination appear novel and non-obvious over art of record.

Regarding features of claims 23-32, the combination of "displaying... pre-game screens... selection and recording of data defining extrinsic factors... an effect on player performance" and "providing post-game report screens based on... pre-game... screens" with other claimed features of the claim appears novel and nonobvious over art of record. Examiner notes that art of record demonstrates there are known extrinsic factors which effect player's performance; however, art of record does not show "selection and recording data defining extrinsic factors" and "providing... report screens based on... pre-game... screens" such that a report of a player's performance is displayed based upon extrinsic factors in the manner claimed.

Regarding features of claims 33-40, the combination of selecting or recording extrinsic factors which effect player performance with other claimed features of instant claim appears novel and nonobvious over art of record. Examiner notes that art of record demonstrates there are known extrinsic factors which effect player's performance; however, art of record does not show "computing and displaying statistics" pertaining to extrinsic factors effecting a player's performance in the manner claimed.
